

SHALOM  FROM THE OTHER SIDE

SHALOM  FROM THE OTHER SIDE

SALAM  FROM THE OTHER SIDE

"At the end of the day, the Israeli-Palestinian conflict drags us, and we get dragged under it. And maybe we think that we control it, maybe we even think that we can direct it, but in reality, it's like a giant snowball. Either we're crushed under it as it rolls, or we're standing on the sidelines as it passes and it grabs us, and drags us miles from where we want to be. That's what the conflict is."

Amit, age 37, West Jerusalem:

"What's your message to Palestinian peacemakers?"
"Blessed are the peacemakers."
"Those are not your words."
"No, but it was another guy who lived in South Jerusalem."
"Anything else?"
"Yes. I wish we could help more."

SHALOM  FROM THE OTHER SIDE

SALAM/SHALOM FROM THE OTHER SIDE

Lamees, age 31, Nablus

"Keep your hope. Because we do. Even if the situation is not that good, we hope for the better. And we can live peacefully and normally as other nations, as other people do. We can change the feelings between both peoples. So keep your hope high".

SALAM  FROM THE OTHER SIDE

SALAM  FROM THE OTHER SIDE

Tareq, age 20, Al-Ubeidiya:

"Sharing each other's stories, talking about what happened in our daily lives, that's something really beautiful... The whole dynamic of interactivity. It's something that I really miss the most right now. And it doesn't matter whether you're an introvert, extrovert, whatever, you're a human being at the end. We all want the connection."

